Turning Up Construction

Jobsite techniques to keep projects moving in the next normal

1 | MINIMIZE SURFACE CONTACT & SANITIZE

Before every shift, sanitize machinery and high-touch areas such as handrails, doorknobs, ladders and more.

- Door hangers or posters can be used throughout the space to reflect sanitization schedules and teams responsible
- Removable labels for high-touch areas reminding to sanitize before or after use
- Hand sanitizer stations can be easily moved to important areas in each space

2 | SPACE SEPARATION

While large companies take on technology to enforce distancing, most construction teams have less than 20 employees and look for easy, visible and clear solutions for all individuals on the jobsite.

- Tall branded partitions with wheels easily separate people to minimize exposure in large or small spaces
- Use large banners as a room divider to split rooms

3 | JOBSITE SIGNS

This staple signage can be crafted to update employees and the public on new procedures including:

- Fence banners for each contractor displaying the commitment toward safety and job completion
- Yard signs remain posted long after a job is done
- Inside the site, post labels and posters about the additional ventilation added, space separation measures, sanitization and more

REAL ESTATE

Advertising

With realtors offering mostly appointment-only services, business doesn't stop.

- Postcards attract more appointments

Custom Gifts

To encourage viewings, custom gifts can include wine bottles, luxury soap, essential oils and more.

- Packaging comes in short runs for easy testing
- Glitter hang tags can be tied to the gift inside with your contact information

Interchangeable Messaging

Keep your messaging up to date with the unpredictable changes in your state.

- A-frame sandwich boards

Construction is Critical

Having the right tools for the next normal

4 | CHECKLISTS FOR DAILY TOOLBOX TALKS

Contact tracing on site or simply to track attendance during the morning company huddle.

- Pre-templated memo pads create convenient record of site visits
- Custom forms can be personalized for any jobsite

5 | ADMINISTRATIVE CONTROLS

Limit access to job sites, work trailers, and establish pre-screening stations.

- Helmet labels indicate screening, training certification and more
- Hand sanitizer stations for quick access
- Banners and A-frames provide visual cues and instruction

6 | SAFETY SIGNAGE

Communicate administrative controls where choke points and other high-risk congregation areas occur.

- Banners provide clear instructions at a distance and when at-a-glance visibility is critical
- Posters and decals are ideal for use within the structures

7 | VIRTUAL INSPECTIONS

Remote inspections are an efficient way to move projects forward, both for county or city inspectors as well as architects or construction leads.

- Label specific inspection materials so they are always ready and on hand such as flashlights, levels and tape measures
